Meeting Minutes

by Mike WA9FTS

There was no official meeting and Jim & Jean dropped off the refreshments and left. Therefore, there were no minutes but don't be surprised if Jim creates some improbable minutes anyway.

SRO Meeting Notes, Malapropisms & Malarkey for October 12, 2005

By Jim Hawes, AA9DT

OCTOBER MEETING. The clock strikes somewhere around eight, before striking the floor. Ah! The clarion call to either gather around the big table, or eat lots of cookies! In the absence of Mike the Magnificent WA9EVF, Backup Mike WA9FTS opens tonight's meeting. In fact, the meeting turns out to be a one-man, one-Mike show.

Jean and I appear briefly to deliver refreshments, and then we split. Sorry, ham-type chums. Maybe we'll catch you next time. Anyway, since I'm not actually here tonight, these notes tend to be speculative. But just think: Through the glories of modern printing technology, I can participate virtually. You'll hardly notice any difference in the tangents I forge off on. Why, this one time...

OFFICIALLY NOT OFFICIAL. According to Mike Brost WA9FTS, this get-together doesn't qualify as an "official meeting." I don't know one meeting from another. I guess that what Mike means is this: The SRO constitution requires attendance by a certain number of club officer-type raccoons. Maybe that's another rule that we need to adjust. A little more latitude would help me to continue serving you. As a contractor, I never know when or where my next contract might occur. A contract can easily consume my free time. Then my next SRO visit awaits the end of my contract.

Business responsibilities require other officers to miss meetings, too. For example, they keep flying Don W9RA to the Togolese Republic. My wife Jean KB9FXL receives 2 am calls about repairs to Tasmanian earth stations. Then sometimes, a hurricane blows down a coconut oil processing plant in Babelthuap, Palau. Or something like that. Those calls wake me up, too, folks. At that hour, I may be a little foggy on the details.

TREASURER'S REPORT. Mike WA9FTS brought three checks for other officers to countersign. We club officers need to handle the checks at the November meeting. The bad news is that Mike had to float the club a short-term loan. The good news is that the club didn't spend any money. Thanks and sorry, Mike.

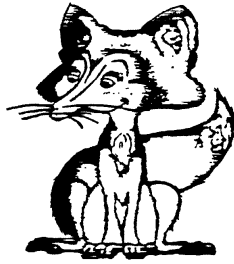

AUCTION (NOT). Tonight, we planned an auction. You might have seen that on the marquee. On auctions, despite the low turnout, the club rules don't pose any conflict. The difficulty occurs when one guy tries to play both auctioneer and cashier. Backup Mike is a very capable guy. Yet even his capabilities can't pull off both jobs. So much for our October auction.

Anyway, Mike sells a few items, including pieces from Gil's and Morrie's estates. Thanks, buyers, for bringing money and stepping up to the table. Mike's sales total a sump-pumptuous $25. Ka-ching. After Mike wraps up these deals, everyone bugs out. Mike closes the Edgebrook Field House at about 9 pm.

Questions for Mike: Did anyone bid on Carol's house? Does it come with a skyhook? Jim Quinn K9JQ: What's the ham radio discount on a place like that? Tonight, the house would be a hard sell. Mike can't exactly show off the place. With the van chock full of auction tsatskes, the house just wouldn't fit. Mike tried to balance the place across the back seat. The chimney kept getting stuck on the dome light.

ANNUAL PARTY. Don't forget, SRO and CFAR members! You're all invited to the Hanukkah and Christmas party! Be there on Wednesday, December 14. The cover charge is $5 per person. Such a deal! For half a sawbuck, you can fill up your plate. And go back for seconds. And drag back for thirds. One caution: The chicken crust sets up after about a half hour. Backup Mike brings the Utility, All-Purpose, Holiday Mystery Punch to help restore digestive processes. It's purely medicinal! With any luck, the plumbing should work by New Year's Day.
